COURSE DESCRIPTION:

This seminar will explore the intersecting social constructs of gender, race, and class as they relate to the production and consumption of music, with a specific focus on popular culture.

ASSIGNED READINGS, LISTENINGS, AND VIEWINGS:

There is no one assigned text for this course; rather, required readings will be available on reserve or via the internet. Supplementary audio-visual materials will be similarly made accessible. Assigned readings, listenings, and viewings must be completed by the start of the class during which they will be discussed. Note: As term progresses, changes may be made to the reading list. These will be announced in class and an updated reading list will be uploaded to the website.

EVALUATION:

1. CLASS PARTICIPATION: 20%

Students will be required to lead the discussion in one class. Students will choose a topic of interest from the course syllabus for this purpose during the first class. It must be noted, however, that students are expected to come to all classes prepared to discuss readings and audio-visual materials. Periodically, students will also be asked to bring in relevant examples from their own audio-video libraries to share with the class and discuss in relation to the readings.

2. ARTICLE SUMMARY & RESPONSE: 30% DUE: 1 WEEK AFTER CLASS DISCUSSION OF ARTICLE

Over the course of the term, students will submit three short essays (2-3 pages maximum) that present an overview of and response to a reading discussed in class. Each summary and response will be worth 10%. Students will select articles from the reading list provided for the course and must choose one focused on gender, one on race, and one on class. These essays will be due one week after the chosen article has been discussed in class.

3. TERM PAPER PROPOSAL WITH BIBLIOGRAPHY: 10% DUE: FEBRUARY 3

Students will propose a paper on a topic of relevance to this course. The proposal will clearly define the topic and scope for the term paper, as well as the methodologies and theoretical approaches to be employed. It must identify and cite relevant scholarly work. A bibliography of no fewer than 15 academic sources should accompany the proposal. Students will be asked to share their topics in class on February 3rd to solicit feedback from their peers.

4. PRESENTATION IN STUDENT SEMINAR: 10% DUE: MARCH 31ST

Students will present their term research to their peers in class on March 31st. This presentation is to be between 15 and 20 minutes long and will be followed by 10-15 minutes of discussion. It is anticipated that feedback provided through this process will be valuable for – and possibly incorporated into – the final version of your paper; therefore, it is advisable to have a well-researched and -structured presentation prepared for this date.

5. TERM PAPER: 30% DUE: APRIL 8TH AT NOON

Students will submit a well-written paper of 15-20 pages on a topic relevant to this course.

SUBMISSION GUIDELINES:

All written assignments must employ 12pt Times New Roman font, 1" margins, and double-spacing, and be submitted in hard copy (double-sided preferred). Sources must be cited according to Turabian author-date references style. All assignments will be graded for content and style (spelling, grammar, punctuation, etc).
